HELD A MASS-MEETING.

Interesting Address on the Liquor Evil Made Before the League.

A mass-meeting of the Anti-Saloon League was held yesterday afternoon at McKendry M. E. Church. The attendance was all that the loyal members of the league could have desired, and the programme furnished much that was entertaining. Rev. L. B. Wilson, president of the league, not being able to attend, the meeting was presided over by Vice President James L. Ewin. Rev. F. L. Wideman, pastor of the church, delivered an address of welcome, which told of his faith in the temperance cause and his conviction in the earnestness of the league.

Mrs. Margaret R. Platt, the newly elected president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, spoke at length on the evils of drink and the remedy therefor. It was not true, she said, that prohibitory laws could not be enforced. The revenue derived from licenses was blood money, it was the price of ruined homes, wrecked lives and lost souls.

Rev. Mr. Brooks, pastor of the Nineteenth Baptist Church, made a strong plea for temperance. If every temperance man and woman did their duty, not many years would roll by before the liquor curse would be blotted out. During the service Miss Grace Altsch sang, "Jesus, My Savior." Miss Annie Dashed presided at the organ.

B. &amp; O. DANGER SPOT.

Fatal Accident Narrowly Averted at the R Street Crossing.

At the R Street crossing of the Metropolitan Branch, at Eckington, on Saturday last, what might have proved a serious accident and added another to the already long list of grade crossing casualties of this city was averted by the display of presence of mind.

A two-horse wagon, containing two colored men, was approaching from the west about 1 p. m., and the horse was almost on the track, the driver discovered that a train, composed of an engine and two freight cars, was coming from behind a line of cars that were standing beside the warehouse on the west of the track.

He quickly pulled the horse to the left and the engine passed the wagon within three inches. His companion stood not on the order of going, but went instant out of the back of the wagon.

This is a particularly dangerous place, and there ought to be a flagman stationed there during the day at least, as there is more travel over it than all the crossings

FARDEN IN THE TOILS.

Defaulting Express Agent Is Well Known in This City.

Don Farden, the defaulting Adams Express Company agent, was arrested yesterday afternoon in Baltimore, by Sergeant Kaibfleisch and Pinkerton Detective John R. Saville. Farden has been in and about Washington and Baltimore for over a week, and under the detective's surveillance.

His full name is James Don Farden, and he has been traveling under the alias of T. J. Franklin. He was in the employ of the Adams Express Company in Terre Haute, Ind., and ran away from there with $16,000 on September 3, 1895.

Farden's career in this city has not been a good one. He had positions in the Treasury and Patent Office both of which he lost on account, it is said, of his penchant for gambling. He married Miss Ruth-erford, one of the four daughters of Col. Ruth-erford, since deceased. Farden left his wife and child without a cent when he disappeared, and his wife will return to her mother in Washington.
